Sheffield knifemakers since 1838

Taylor's Eye Witness is a long standing family business which has been producing high quality kitchen knives, scissors, cutlery and pocket knives in Sheffield since 1838.

Employing highly skilled Sheffield craftsmen and with a knowledge base which is unrivalled, they have stood the test of time through an unrelenting dedication to quality, service and good old fashioned technical know-how. What they don't know about knives isn't worth knowing!

2017 marks a new chapter in the Taylor's Eye Witness story, as they complete their move into larger modern premises in Sheffield, their first relocation since 1838. Following several years and £2.5 Million of investment, this new facility serves to meet consumer demand and give even better service to their UK and overseas customers.

Taylor's Eye Witness today

Over 175 years experience has given them the edge when it comes to product development, continually designing and developing kitchenware products based on their customers' needs.

In addition to designing and manufacturing an extensive collection of kitchen knives, scissors, tableware and accessories, Taylor's Eye Witness is proud to represent Kai, SKK, Veritable Sabatier and Sabatier Professional in the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland.

An Invitation

“ We are proud to announce that our first relocation in over 175 years is now complete. We would be delighted to welcome you to our superb new facility in Sheffield, where you can preview upcoming lines in our showroom and take a tour of our newly equipped factory. ”

Contact your area sales manager for further information or to arrange a visit.

Sheffield Made

Taylor's Eye Witness is synonymous with the finest quality Sheffield cutlery ever since John Taylor founded the legend in 1838. John's keen eye for the best raw materials and uncompromising standards of craftsmanship have been passed down through the generations.

Today, Taylor's Eye Witness keeps craftsmanship very much alive with the new Premier Collection range of kitchen knives. Released in strictly limited quantities, Premier Collection kitchen knives are crafted by hand in our Sheffield Factory.

Probably the finest to ever leave Sheffield.

Made without compromise

For this edition of the Premier Collection range, we have chosen Mexican Bocote wood timber to form the handles, paired with high specification Sandvik 14C28N® martensitic blade steel, secured with stunning copper & brass mosaic rivets.

The boldly - figured grain of the Mexican Bocote tree lends itself perfectly to the striking blade shapes we have carefully designed. To enhance the hand feel & to improve durability & water resistance, the wood has been "stabilised" by replacing almost all the moisture in the raw timber with resin under a high vacuum. You will notice that each pair of handle scales has been kept together during all stages of production for a perfectly matched contiguous grain.

Breaking with tradition, the Swedish chromium stainless steel we have selected for this knife promises unrivalled corrosion resistance & thanks to our expertise in hardening, excellent edge retention. Each raw blade blank is individually heat treated & cryogenically soaked to achieve a typical hardness of Rockwell C 60. This is not your average knife.

It's at this stage that the blade is symmetrically taper ground. Precision & consistency is achieved thanks to our suite of computer aided grinding machines. The final cutting edge is ground & polished by hand ensuring unparalleled sharpness from heel to tip.

Limited edition

Reassuringly, production of this edition of the Premier Collection range is strictly limited to 2,000 units & thus each piece has been individually numbered.

Every knife is unique, made like no other.

Ultra-fine edge precision ground from razor blade steel

Fibre-feel handle for excellent grip

We are so confident that these are the sharpest knives your customers will ever use, that we will refund their purchase price if they do not agree!

Made in Sheffield, England by skilled craftsmen to quality standards established over generations, these knives have blades which are hollow ground from razor blade quality steel for optimum performance.

The polypropylene handle is directly moulded onto the blade and has a ribbed area to provide a safe, secure grip.

Range consists of 12 speciality knives, plus a carving fork & sharpening steel.

Endurance pocket knives have been developed to be the toughest pocket knives we've ever produce and, believe me, we've made a few. With rugged, triple bolt-locked handles and a sharpness and blade hardness you'd expect from an Eye Witness pocket knife, they'll never let you down. Like all our pocket knives, they have been made entirely by hand in our Sheffield factory.

“All our knives are designed to provide years of reliable service. This advice will keep them looking and working at their best.”

Top Tips

- Always use wooden or plastic chopping boards to prevent damage to the finely ground edge of the knife. Remember that even the hardest steel is no match for ceramic, glass or stone.
- Always store knives out of reach of children.
- Never store knives in the cutlery drawer. Apart from the obvious risk of injury when rummaging for that last teaspoon, the knife edge is prone to damage from other items in the drawer.
- Consider a universal knife block or magnetic knife rack so your knives are safely stored and always at hand.

Cleaning

Whilst almost all our knives are perfectly fine for dishwasher use, we always recommend washing knives by hand using a plastic dish brush and hot soapy water. Don't leave knives in a sink full of water - it's dangerous and bad for the knife.

Don't be tempted to use wire wool or scouring powder - this will scratch the surface of the blade and make it harder to clean next time.

When clean, hand dry immediately and return them to the knife block.

If you prefer to use a dishwasher, place knives in the top rack with the cutting edge pointing down. Don't place the blade in contact with other metal items, as staining may occur. Avoid "rinse & hold" programmes and hand dry as soon as the cycle is complete.

Should any stain spots appear after washing, these can be removed easily with a soft cloth and stainless steel polish.

Keeping your knives sharp

To maintain any knife in its sharpest condition, best results can be obtained with a Taylor's Eye Witness Sheffield Made honing steel.

To recondition the edge hold the knife at a 15 degree angle against the steel. Draw across and down from handle to blade tip. Repeat on the other side of the blade. Bread knives, draw the flat side of the blade only along the steel to resharpen. Repeat little and often to keep the knife in top condition.

For simple, safe knife maintenance, choose from the Chantry range. Keeping the blade straight, gently pass the knife through from handle to tip several times for easy maintenance of your plain or serrated edge knives.

Our 2 Stage Suction Base Sharpener (T520) with both synthetic diamond and ceramic wheels, is a great value alternative to the Chantry series.

Resharpener blunt knives

If the edge of your knife has become chipped or damaged, or has become dulled over time, the knife needs to be resharpened.

For best results, we recommend the Sabatier Professional 2-Stage Sharpener (SABPRSH01). The super-hard tungsten carbide sharpening tool is perfect for restoring the precision angle to the edge of the knife. Once resharpened, remember to hone the blade regularly.

| | | | | | Not the sharpest knife in the drawer? My tungsten-carbide sharpening tools are engineered to automatically align themselves to suit the edge angle of all plain-edged knives, even asymmetrically ground Japanese knives. What's more, they are specially shaped to allow resharpener of dull blades & honing of sharp ones depending on how you hold the knife in the sharpener. Clever, eh? What's the difference between honing & sharpening? Honing a blade gently straightens any microscopic kinks & bumps in the edge that occur during day-to-day use. Regular honing keeps a sharp knife sharper for longer. A sharp knife is a safer knife. If your knife no longer cuts with ease, or you want to bring an old favourite knife back to life, sharpening removes material from either side of the blade to recreate the original fine cutting edge. | | | | |

Scissors & Shears

Quality from pinch to point

Heritage Series scissors and shears are retro classics evoking childhood memories of grandma's sewing tin. Hot forged from a single billet of high quality stainless steel, Heritage Series scissors and shears are precision ground and finished entirely by hand.

Each individual scissor is hand tested in our Sheffield Factory to ensure the perfect cut from pinch to point before packing and dispatch to store.

Proudly Made in Sheffield

Scissors are far from easy to make, but our expertise puts us among the top few manufacturers in the world. We offer a comprehensive range of kitchen, household and specialist needlecraft & dressmaking scissors and shears made right here in our Sheffield factory. After directly moulding the handles onto the precision ground stainless steel blades, every single scissor is tensioned and fine-tuned entirely by hand and tested twice before leaving the factory. Genuine left handed versions of many of our Sheffield Made scissors are also available.

Professional Sabatier

Professional Sabatier knives date back to the early 1800s and have their roots in Thiers, France.

These precision knives are produced from high quality taper ground stainless steel, creating a blade which is easy to sharpen but difficult to blunt. This, together with the robust full tang, 3 rivet construction, makes them the first choice for professional chefs all over the world.

A brand from Japan

For over 100 years, the kai company has been producing cutlery according to the traditions of the legendary samurai of old Japan. In the process, the desire to preserve ancient traditions and to combine them with innovative techniques represents no contradiction, but forms the basis for new products that honour Japanese blacksmithing while meeting modern demands.

With the highest quality standards, kai has made it its mission to produce special knives for daily use. Made from natural resources, shaped and formed according to the expertise of the ancient blacksmithing art of the samurai, kai cooking knives epitomise Japanese craftsmanship carried out with the highest degree of precision.

From the design to completion of each individual knife, the focus is on the development of an integrated and carefully-considered product.

Since beginning as a family business in 1908 as Seki, kai has developed into an international company.

Japanese blade shapes

Santoku (English "the three virtues")

The Santoku is the traditional Japanese shape for a utility knife, comparable to the European Chef's knife. The name 'three benefits' is derived from its versatility for cutting fish, meat and vegetables.

Nakiri (English "vegetable cutter")

The Nakiri blade shape is a traditional Japanese vegetable knife, and it is therefore used primarily for this purpose. Despite its cleaver-like shape it is not suitable for chopping bones.

Yanagiba (English "the willow leaf blade")

The Yanagiba is a traditional Japanese slicing knife. Due to the slender, one-sided, hollow-ground and relatively long blade, the knife is particularly suitable for very thin cuts.

The knife guarantees a skilful - and particularly clean, smooth cut. Such cuts are particularly important in the preparation of sushi. The length and shape of the blade allow for a long, pulling cutting movement.

Deba (English "protruding blade")

The Deba is used in Japanese cuisine as a traditional axe. The sturdy, heavy knife has a strong, broad blade and a single cutting edge. The front part of the blade is used mainly for filleting fish. The rear part of the blade is stronger and is used, among other things, for cutting small chicken and fish bones.

Materials

Damascus steel

- in this case: its modern mode of production - is an alloy consisting of multiple visible layers produced in combination with a core steel. The base material used for the production of modern Damascus steel derives from steels with various contents of accompanying elements. The combination of steel grades with contrasting properties allows the production of particularly hard and at the same time flexible steels.

VG 2 steel

(57-58 \pm 1 HRC) is a Japanese steel distinguished by its high flexibility and resilience. Thanks to its high chromium content, this blade steel is particularly resistant to both wear and corrosion.

VG 10 steel

(61 \pm 1 HRC) is a classic Japanese high performance steel with excellent properties that have awarded it the moniker "gold steel". It is a stainless blade steel of the highest quality with a high carbon content. This allows it to be tempered particularly well in contrast to other stainless steels. Moreover, VG-10 boasts a particularly good edge retention.

VG MAX steel

(61 \pm 1HRC) is based on VG-10 steel with further optimisations to its properties. Enriched with a higher chromium and vanadium content than VG-10, it demonstrates an improved edge retention and resistance to corrosion. A higher carbon content also makes it harder than other steel grades.

6A/1K6 steel

is a newly developed steel (56 \pm 1 HRC). Blades fashioned from this material are especially resistant to corrosion due to their high chromium content. This is a very pure type of stainless steel. Its greater carbon content ensures a better edge holding ability.

SUS420J2 steel

(56 \pm 1 HRC) is a corrosion-resistant stainless steel with a high chromium content (14%) and an average carbon content (0.3%).

HRC

refers to hardness tests according to Rockwell's C scale, employed for particularly hard materials. The Rockwell hardness value arises from the depth a testing object reaches whilst penetrating the test material (diamond, as the hardest material, serves as the value of reference with 100 HRC).

Pakkawood

does not refer to a particular wood species, but rather the general term for impregnated layered wood veneers bonded using high quality resins to ensure the handle's stability and guarantee lasting durability in the face of moisture and organic material.

Shun Classic Series

Made in Japan

The Shun Classic Series unites centuries-old Japanese Samurai blacksmithing with today's modern and technically-sophisticated manufacturing processes. The result is an exceedingly high-quality range of Damascus knives, engineered to the most exacting standards and designed to always retain its sharpness. The knives are therefore ideally suited for professional use. The Shun Classic blades are gorgeous to look at due to the distinctive semigloss pattern exhibited by the Damascus steel composite comprising 32 layers. This combination with the elegant, tapering pakkawood handle, results in an overall aesthetic design that puts quality and functionality at its core.

The Shun Classic Blade

VG MAX steel with a hardness of 61 (± 1) HRC forms the entire blade's core right up to its edge. Sheathed in 32 layers of Damascus steel, the knife embodies a peerless anatomy paired with a resilient blade that is both hard and flexible at once due to its hybrid composition. The Shun Classic blades have a double-sided edge.

The Shun Classic Handle

The slim handle made of durable pakkawood is fashioned in a traditional Japanese chestnut shape. High quality resins added to the wood make the material particularly resilient and resistant to moisture. Its typical chestnut shape ensures a comfortable and secure grip whilst cutting, thanks to a small rim on its right side. The integrated tang boosts stability and balance.

Shun Pro Sho Series

Made in Japan

The Shun Pro Sho Series focuses exclusively on single-edged and thus traditionally Japanese blade shapes. Thanks to extremely high manufacturing standards and corrosion-resistant blade steels, this series is particularly suitable for continuous professional use.

The knife's elegant design combines classic Japanese form with contemporary features in a sublime fashion. Their blades embossed with an elaborate ornamental pattern, created using an innovative manufacturing process, form the knives' visual highlight. As in the Shun Classic Series, the elegantly shaped and functional pakkawood handle stands in stark contrast to the blade's opulent patterns.

The Shun Pro Sho Blade

The knife's blade is made of corrosion-resistant VG 10 steel with a hardness of 61 (± 1) HRC. Its cutting edge, honed to 45° on one side, ensures the extra sharpness required for extreme precision. The flat of the blade is hollow-ground to create a cushion of air between it and the material being cut. Combined with a wide and flat blade, this reduces friction to a minimum and guarantees perfect cutting results.

The Shun Classic Handle

The handle, made of black pakkawood, appears very elegant and fits the hand perfectly. Its asymmetrical chestnut shape enables a secure and comfortable grip whilst cutting. The integrated tang provides stability and balance.

Shun Nagare Series

Made in Japan

kai has created another innovative masterpiece of Japanese blacksmithing with its Shun Nagare Series. Its sophisticated design, the special properties of the materials employed, and a technically complex production process places this series of knives among the pinnacle of the luxury class. An artfully decorated, radial pattern of Damascus layers adorns the highly polished blades.

This effect, combined with the mottled grey-black handle, lends the knife an impressive overall appearance. The series' blades consist of two different types of steel, which are bonded to form a 72-layered piece of Damascus steel. This complex layering of two types of steel results in a blade with exceptionally sustainable cutting ability, which has been recognised by the awarding of the German Design Award 2017 Special Mention.

The Shun Nagare Blade

kai produces the so-called "dual-core" blade of the Shun Nagare Series in an innovative forging process. Here, two types of steel with different properties are combined to form a 72-layered piece of Damascus steel. The combination of flexible and robust VG 2 steel and an especially hard VG 10 steel results in a hardness of 61 (± 1) HRC. As a result, the double-edged blades have a particularly long-lasting edge retention, and excellent sharpness.

The Shun Nagare Handle

With its soft, rounded lines, the ergonomically shaped handle fits the hand perfectly. The forged tang in the handle lends the knife a robust stability and provides an optimum counterweight to the blade. The riveted handle, which is fashioned from mottled grey-black pakkawood - a waterproof and especially robust wood veneer - imparts a warm and valuable feel to the knife.

Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Series

Made in Japan

The Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Series has been tailored specifically to the needs and requirements of professional chefs. In this premium series, the high-quality material properties of the well-known Shun Classic Series are combined with an entirely novel and commanding overall appearance.

The blade's back down to its middle has been hammered to create a surface known as Tsuchime. This texture is succeeded by a finely matted Damascus grain typical for Shun. The blade is finished with a high-polish precision cutting edge. The meticulously machined blade is paired with a medium brown, grained pakkawood handle. The blade's particularly hard and durable steel core provides incredible sharpness and a long-lasting cutting ability.

The Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Blade

The Shun Premier blade's core fashioned from extremely hard VG Max steel and is enveloped in 32 layers of Damascus steel. This combination of different steel grades makes the blade both hard and flexible at once. The double-sided blade is easy to use because of its light weight and guarantees a clean and precise cut. The usage of a hammered surface - known in Japan as Tsuchime - underlies not only aesthetic reasons, but also serves the release of material from the blade thanks to the resulting little pockets of air.

The Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Handle

Thanks to its symmetrical shape, it is suitable for both left- and right-handed users. A continuous tang ensures stability and balance whilst cutting. As a special touch, the handle's end has been engraved with Tim Mälzer's bull's head, the professional chef's trademark.

Junior Chef's Knife by Tim Mälzer

Made in Japan

In collaboration with Tim Mälzer, kai has developed a special Junior chef's knife, designed to aid children aged 6 and older to handle knives safely when cooking collaboratively. Children imitate cutting intuitively with a kind of sawing movement. On this basis, the stainless steel blade of the Junior chef's knife has been equipped with a finely serrated edge, designed to minimize the amount of effort and risk of slipping during usage. In addition to this, the blade has a rounded, blunt tip to further reduce risk of injury. Due to the non-slip and ergonomic plastic handle, the Junior chef's knife is safe in smaller hands. The Junior chef's knife comes with a flexible finger protector for maximum protection.

Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Minamo Series

Made in Japan

The Shun Minamo Series forms an exquisitely elegant and individual addition to the premium class of the Shun Premier Series of knives. The series unites Japanese and European elements in an especially artful manner. Tim Mälzer came up with the idea to develop a combination of the typically Japanese Santoku knife and the classic European cooking knife. This fusion served as the basis for three distinct blade shapes.

The combination of a black handle with a specially designed blade embellished with a fine Damascus grain makes every knife appear like an entirely unique object. The series' name originates from this fine grain, which is reminiscent of water's surface rippling in the rain.

The Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Minamo Blade

The Shun Minamo blade's core consists of extremely hard VG-MAX steel (61 (±1) HRC), wrapped in 32 layers of Damascus steel. The blades' high-gloss finish is completed with a Damascus grain. The combination of Santoku and cooking knife's hybrid nature, embodied in the blade's rectangular form, easily allows both rocking movements as well as the accurate chopping of cutting materials. The blades are double-edged.

The Shun Premier Tim Mälzer Minamo Handle

Thanks to its symmetrical shape, the black pakkawood handle is suitable for both left- and right-handed users. The slight arch on the handle's underside enables a comfortable fit. The forged tang ensures a perfect balance between blade and handle.

Seki Magoroku Composite Series

Made in Japan

Having received the Red Dot Design Award 2013, the Seki Magoroku Composite Series is the symbol of contemporary design expertise stemming from the house of kai.

The series combines dynamism and lightness: the composite blade composed of two different types of steel is adorned by a visible copper solder running along its length. The steel grades are manufactured separately and subsequently bonded using liquid copper. The resulting appearance is impressive and turns the blade into a highlight of high-tech engineering.

In combination with the pale wooden handle, the series appears futuristic, light, and sophisticated. Beyond that, the knives ensure ultimate sharpness and an extraordinary overall performance.

The Seki Magoroku Composite Blade

The blade combines different textures and grades of steel: the chamfered, polished bolster merges into the satined rounded blade back made of SUS420J2 steel and flows into a cutting edge made of especially hard VG-MAX steel.

The double-sided blades combine a minimalistic aesthetic with high edge retention and corrosion resistance.

The Seki Magoroku Composite Handle

The light, cross-grained pakkawood handle is seamlessly attached to the integrated tang, which is suitable for both left- and right-handed users due to its symmetrical shape. The handle is slim and light, giving it rather top-heavy and dynamic handling characteristics.

The seamless transition from handle to polished bolster enables the comfortable and easy holding of the blade between thumb and forefinger.

Seki Magoroku Redwood Series

Made in Japan

Seki Magoroku Redwood is a series of chef's knives with a robust stainless steel quality and typically Japanese features. With its highly polished blades, the series includes both single-edged and double-edged blades that share the common denominators of stable and well-balanced functionality as well as sharpness.

The design combines a minimalist shape with traditional Japanese aesthetics. The name stems from the redwood timber used to make the inserted handle. This hardwood has a naturally high oil content and is particularly moisture resistant.

The Seki Magoroku Redwood Blade

The blades of the Seki Magoroku Redwood Series are made of a carbon 1K6 stainless steel with a hardness of 58 (±1) HRC. Both the double-edged and the single-edged blade shapes boast long-lasting edge retention and excellent sharpness. The single-sided grinding traditionally used for Japanese blade shapes minimises friction between the blade and the cut material, thus enabling particularly precise cuts, as is required for the preparation of sushi, for instance.

The Seki Magoroku Redwood Handle

The traditional chestnut shape handle is made of redwood. This finely textured softwood is light and particularly robust. The taper towards the blade makes the handle fit the hand particularly comfortably. The blade and the handle are sandwiched and firmly connected via a shiny black plastic ferrule.

Wasabi Black Series

Made in Japan

The Wasabi Black Series can trace its origins to Japanese communal kitchens. Thanks to a successful combination of enduring functionality and sharpness, robust material quality, and a minimalistic design, the numerous blades of the series are intended for uncomplicated and continuous use, with an impressive price-to-performance ratio.

Lastly, the series owes its easy-care handling to the water-resistant plastic handle - the pleasant feel of which has been achieved through the addition of bamboo powder. The matte black handle and high-polish stainless steel blade fashioned from 1K6 steel are permanently moulded together, ruling out the aggregation of dirt.

The Wasabi Black Blade

The polished blades of the Wasabi Black Series are made of newly developed corrosion-resistant 6A/1K6 steel with a hardness value of 56 (± 1) HRC. The extensive range offers both double-edged blade shapes, as well as traditional Japanese single-edged blade shapes. The slightly arched back of the blade allows a secure grip during work, making it easier to make fine rocking movements, for example

The Wasabi Black Handle

The black plastic grip is water resistant and thus particularly robust. Its oval or chestnut shape (depending on the blade size) exhibits a pleasant, natural feel thanks to the addition of bamboo powder.

Pure Komachi 2 Series

The Pure Komachi Series' knives introduce a wealth of playful colours. Visually, these knives are distinguished primarily by their coloured coatings. The series' blades are made of stainless steel and add significant value in terms of removing cut material from the blade, especially when combined with their coloured, non-stick coating. Each knife is assigned a specific colour, allowing for an easy overview. The ergonomic plastic handle is tailored to match the coloured coating of the blade.

The blades of the Pure Komachi 2 Series are made of corrosion-resistant stainless steel and are coated with a coloured non-stick layer on both sides. The double-sided blades boast a hardness of 53 ± 1 HRC. The plastic handle is securely moulded to the blade and provide superior cutting comfort for effortless performance.

With the wet grinding machine, blades can be resharpened in a few simple steps. The fine-grained, rotating whetstone is constantly moistened during grinding. As a result, small chips are rinsed off and both the blade and the whetstone are protected against overheating. Burrs, frays and coarse chips can be removed by hand with the corresponding deburring brush after the grinding process. Special attachments (16° and 22°) can be used for double-sided blades with the device.

Oroshigane - the traditional Japanese tool is an excellent choice for ginger and wasabi. Its extremely sharp serration grinds very smoothly and allows the flavour to flower out even better. It can be used on both sides (smooth/ very smooth). Its large grating surface provides for comfortable work. Suitable for ginger, wasabi, radish, garlic, tomatoes and much more.

Pure Komachi Grater

Made in Japan

The three graters in the Pure Komachi Series possess durable and extremely sharp stainless steel cutting edges. The grater's ultra-fine cutting edges are cut into the stainless steel using an innovative etching method, as opposed to the conventional punching method. This means that the cutting edges achieve a razor-like sharpness, reducing the necessitated force to a minimum. In addition, the substance being grated is precisely cut, not crushed, allowing the aroma and flavour to fully develop.
